Los Angeles Public Library / Career Online High School
Get the Education and Career Skills You Need to Succeed

The Los Angeles Public Library, in partnership with Gale/Cengage, offers adults the opportunity to earn an accredited high school diploma and career certificate online through Smart Horizons Career Online Education's Career Online High School (COHS).

The library's pilot program provides a limited number of free grants to qualified adult learners who are looking to advance their careers, prepare for workforce entry or continue their education.

Applicants who successfully complete an online self-assessment and a 2 week prerequisite course, followed by an in-person interview, will be considered for a grant to attend Career Online High School (COHS).

Once enrolled, COHS pairs each student with an academic coach, who provides the student with an individual career path, offers ongoing guidance, evaluates performance and connects the student with the resources needed to master the courses. Students will be given up to 18 months to complete the program.

To be considered for the program, applicants must:

- Be an adult aged 19 or over
- Be a resident of the City of Los Angeles or an employee of the City of Los Angeles
- Have a library account in good standing

To begin the online self-assessment & apply: <http://www.careeronlinehs.gale.com/lapl/self-assessment>

Libraries, ACRL, and financial literacy Helping students make sound decisions

In this column, the first of my presidential year, I will highlight one of the areas on which I plan to focus this year and hope you will agree that it is an important topic for ACRL, libraries, and librarians.

There has been great emphasis placed in the past several years on the cost—and value—of higher education. In addition to the focus on the cost of textbooks and other nontuition expenses, lawmakers have also focused on the dramatic rise in student loan debt,¹ especially as student loan debt, in 2010, surpassed credit card debt in the United States.²

The Higher Education Opportunity Act of 2008 included several requirements for colleges and universities. Among these was the mandate to have a “net price calculator” to help students determine the actual cost of college. Colleges were also required to provide reading lists of required texts in advance of classes to provide students the opportunity to shop for competitive prices.³

As academic librarians, we should be concerned about this focus on the cost of higher education. Being embedded in the academic culture gives us a unique

These Public Libraries Are for Snowshoes and Ukuleles

By PATRICIA LEIGH BROWN SEPT. 14, 2015

Jessica Zaker looking over guitars in the Sacramento Public Library's Library of Things.

SACRAMENTO — Libraries aren't just for books, or even e-books, anymore. They are for checking out cake pans (North Haven, Conn.), snowshoes (Biddeford, Me.), telescopes and microscopes (Ann Arbor, Mich.), American Girl dolls (Lewiston, Me.), fishing rods (Grand Rapids, Minn.), Frisbees and Wiffle balls (Mesa, Ariz.) and mobile hot spot devices (New York and Chicago).

Here in Sacramento, where people can check out sewing machines, ukuleles, GoPro cameras and board games, the new service is called the Library of Things.

“The move toward electronic content has given us an opportunity to re-evaluate our physical spaces and enhance our role as a community hub,” said Larry Neal, the president of the Public Library Association, a division of the American Library Association, which represents 9,000 public libraries. “The web is swell,” he added, “but it can feel impersonal.”

Libraries, arguably the original sharing economy, have long circulated art prints, music and movies, and more recently have added tools. But services like the Library of Things and the “Stuff-brary” in Mesa, outside Phoenix, are part of a broad cultural shift in which libraries increasingly view themselves as hands-on creative hubs, places where people can learn new crafts and experiment with technology like 3-D printers.

A Roving 'Batmobile' Is Helping Map Alaska's Bats

By Madeline Bodin | September 8, 2015 2:22 pm

Petersburg, Alaska, at sunset. Credit: Vilmos Varga / Shutterstock

One evening last month, library technician Chris Weiss could be seen prowling the streets of Petersburg, Alaska, in her batmobile. She didn't attract any special attention; the light blue Subaru blended right in. But the sensitive microphone on the roof and the bright yellow box inside the car gave her the power to hear sounds outside of human hearing – bat calls.

Inglaterra: El Proyecto de Archivos en Peligro de la Biblioteca Británica tiene como objetivo contribuir a la conservación del material de archivo que está en peligro de destrucción, abandono o deterioro físico mundialmente. Dentro de sus objetivos, el proyecto digitaliza y coloca a la disponibilidad materiales de una gran variedad de países y frecuentemente le permite a países y bibliotecas con menos fondos el preservar y salvaguardar su patrimonio documental.

16. Paz y Justicia

Moldova: Las bibliotecas están contribuyendo a Alianzas para Gobierno Abierto (Government Partnership (OGP)), una plataforma entre el gobierno, la sociedad civil y empresarial para impulsar compromisos para Gobierno Abierto y la rendición de cuentas. Los bibliotecarios asisten a las reuniones de la sociedad civil para ayudar a desarrollar un plan de acción nacional del país, y para incluir el papel de las bibliotecas como un partidario de acceso a la información.
